Tammy Barry, Vice Provost for Graduate and Professional Education

French Administration Building, Room 324

The provost oversees the Graduate School administration. This responsibility is shared with the vice provost for graduate and professional education and their appointed team, in collaboration with the Faculty Senate's Graduate Studies Committee and Professional Health Sciences Committee. Adhering to the Council of Graduate School's recommended guidelines, the Graduate School manages several key areas, including:

- Champion the interests of graduate students.
- Define a vision of excellence for university graduate education, including faculty, student, curriculum, and research directions.
- Oversee the quality of graduate education.
- Uphold equal standards across all academic fields.
- Set the parameters for graduate education, distinguishing it from undergraduate or continuing/professional education.
- Offer a comprehensive view of all post-baccalaureate programs.
- Foster an interdisciplinary perspective.
- Promote intellectual exchange between faculty and graduate students.
- Advocate for the importance of graduate education.
- Highlight the necessity of adequately training future professors.
- Find ways to use graduate education to enrich undergraduate education.
- Ensure or assist in providing graduate student services.
- Advocate for key issues and groups essential to the success of graduate programs, such as research integrity, scholarship, creativity, ethical values, and the promotion of diversity and inclusiveness.

These wide-ranging duties are performed through various tasks involving programs, faculty, students, administration, and outside participants.

Due to the specific needs and standards of many professional degrees (such as D.V.M., M.B.A., M.D., M.H.A.L., D.N.P., and Pharm.D.), some parts of these programs may be managed by bodies other than the Graduate School. However, they remain under the oversight of the vice provost for graduate and professional education.
